Since 1957, the Florida Shore & Beach Preservation Association has functioned as a league of coastal cities and counties on behalf of Florida's beaches. Almost all coastal counties and a majority of "beach" cities are members. In addition, we have approximately 400 members representing other entities like convention and visitor bureaus, tourist development councils, inlet and navigation districts, universities, coastal design experts, scientists, tourist-related businesses, and perhaps most-importantly, private citizens who simply love Florida's beaches.

Together, this makes us a very unique kind of state association – exclusively focused on the preservation of our sandy beaches. FSBPA's public-private partnership, in recognizing and promoting the environmental, recreational and economic benefits of healthy beaches, has lead virtually every important improvement in Florida's nationally-recognized beach management program.

FSBPA is a recognized voice in Tallahassee on beach matters, and a long-standing resource for Florida's Congressional Delegation.

The more members, the stronger the message!
